

What yardsticks do not measure, you still come to the conclusion that Texas is a big state for all concepts.

What yardsticks do not measure still come to the conclusion that Texas is a big state for all concepts. Its superiority over the other 48 States noticeable not only geographically from East to West Texas stretches for 1600 km but population of about 20 million people, huge oil reserves achievements of local football team the Dallas Cowboys and even the great herds of cattle in Texas pastures. It is not surprising that the sense of superiority of the mental characteristics of the native Texans. Here is still preserved the spirit of freedom symbolically reflected on the flag of the state hosting the Lone star emblem of the Republic of Texas. Another symbol of the horns of Texas Longhorn cattle. It is associated with the history of the state known for fearless cowboys protecting people, land and livestock from the daring raids of outsiders. Recall the famous American westerns in them has been Texas. The size of the state and its glorious history inspired Texans love everything big has developed a culture of exaggeration and bravado. The conviction of local residents that concerns their favorite Texas cooler is better and bigger. Like it or not is hard to judge but to argue with a stubborn Texans own peril. No wonder in many songs, the pointers in this U.S. state sounds a warning don't mess with Texas. The history of Texas is closely connected with the former Spanish mission and military Fort of the Alamo. The war of independence in Texas began with the capture of a group of rebellious American settlers of the Alamo. It happened in December 1835. 13 days 189 rebels resisted the numerically superior Mexican army. The Mexicans failed to return the castle just killing all its defenders. Remember the Alamo became the rallying cry of the war for independence by uniting himself to all volunteers. Some time later, the army of volunteers consisting of local residents under the command of General Samuel Houston drove out the Mexican invaders proclaiming an independent Republic of Texas 1836. It besides Texas became part of the territory of the present States of new Mexico Colorado Oklahoma and Wyoming. To the last Mexico refused to recognize Texas independence until in 1845 Texas joined the United States. As a result following this, an official of the Mexican war, Mexico was forced to abandon claims to Texas and the rest of the Wild West. In the second half of the nineteenth century, Texas has experienced the heyday of the great cattle drives. At this time, the state roamed by descendants of the bulls and cows brought by Spanish colonists more than a century ago. Longhorn was the name of a breed of long-horned Texas cattle. Delivery and hauls cattle in Dallas and Fort worth were engaged in

Link to article:: What yardsticks do not measure, you still come to the conclusion that Texas is a big state for all concepts.